We all want our animal companions to be well-behaved members of the family. Sadly, the most common reason for pet euthanasia at shelters is not due to illness, but because of the multitude of pets turned-in due to improper pet behavior.

If you have a pet with behavior problems, we'd like to help. The best time to start is with puppies and kittens, before they've settled into unacceptable behavior. But it is never too late to improve your pet's behavior.

Improving pet behavior can be challenging yet rewarding endeavor. The key to success is persistence!! Never give up on the chosen protocol, don't skip steps, and stay in close touch with your Behavior Consultant. Frequent follow-up appointments and phone calls are very important.
